Andy Campbell built a premier business, shareholder, and corporate litigation practice in Birmingham, representing both plaintiffs and defendants across the Southeast. Jay Guin remained in Tuscaloosa, where he established a corporate tax, merger and acquisition, and bond and finance practice as a part of Tanner & Guin, LLC.

Bert M. Guy has been practicing law for over 25 years and has developed very respected practices in the areas of outside general counsel, mergers and acquisitions, and labor and employment law. Justin G. Williams represents both debtors and creditors in complex bankruptcy, business restructuring, and financial workouts, and Caroline Gidiere has also practiced for many years in the area of complex business litigation, involving trials, arbitrations, and appellate work.

Campbell Guin is building a strong regional specialty practice throughout Alabama and Eastern Mississippi. By having offices in Birmingham, Hoover, and Tuscaloosa, the firm provides convenient access to a broad range of clients. Campbell Guin offers unsurpassed efficiency and expertise in the specialized representation it provides.

Andy Campbell, Jay Guin, and their partners have been providing sound, aggressive, and innovative legal services to clients for many years. Now they intend to expand their boutique services to the Southeast region by crafting sensible solutions for businesses and individuals.
